Subject: Please end the three year moratorium

Ashley,

I am writing to see if there is any truth to some of the articles that I have been reading about the planning commissions plans to institute a far too rigorous permit process to the Cherry Point Industrial area. It sure feels like the planning commission goal is to make it harder and harder for the three industries in that area to the point that they eventually decide to leave. That would be disastrous for our county. BP, P66, and Intalco are three of the few employers that actually pay a living wage. A few of the other engineering firms in the area are directly connected with those three businesses as well. If BP, P66, and Intalco Whatcom county could say good-bye to engineering firms Anvil, Design Group, Eichleay, and others.

The planning commission should be doing everything in their power to keep those industries viable.

Please tell me that the commission is not trying to stop development by the three businesses and end the 3 year moratorium. The moratorium makes absolutely no sense and it is not something smart people would put in place.

Please pass this on to the commission and I would appreciate a reply.

Thanks,
Dale Nelsen
